Five Fables For The Young At Heart J. Aldric Gaudet

Three 'tween friends, one nine-year-old girl, a brother/sister pair of nine-year-old twins, a faithful dog and a Christmas ornament have adventures beyond the norm in these re-renderings of the fable for modern times. These 21st century fables resemble ancient fables while reflecting the concerns of our modern age. As fables do, the stories involve children, innocents who stumble upon the absurdities of the human condition in Wonderland-like encounters with the mad and the antic. Do not expect the expected. What follows are fantasies of the absurd, abounding with eccentric characters, biting satire, and dark comedy. This ain't your Grandma's Fantasy Land. Those willing to suspend their disbelief will enjoy a grand adventure.
