Five archaeologists uncover a terror bird fossil in New Mexico with an eight inch diameter black sphere where its stomach should be. When all five touch the sphere they are transported inside a two hundred mile diameter, Pellucidar-like hollow world inhabited by animals that lived over two million years earlier.

They see a pyramid on an island in the distant, upward curving horizon and spend several days crossing a wild landscape to reach the shore of the landlocked sea inside the hollow world. On the way they are attacked by ten foot tall terror birds and flee stampeding mega-bison while avoiding giant lions, massive crocodiles, and the denizens of the small ocean they need to cross to get to the island with the pyramid structure.

Who will survive to discover the secret to this outside-in zoo out of time?

Rating Note: This is an 'M' rated work, NOT an 'R' rated gore-fest. If you read this expecting graphic violence, you will be disappointed. It is a fun adventure that includes some relatively mild adult themes and language.
