Unhappy Valley: Child Abuse and Football At Penn State The New York Times

In early November 2011, Jerry Sandusky, an assistant football coach to Penn State's legendary Joe Paterno, was charged with multiple counts of child sexual abuse over a 15-year period. Sandusky, who had been the subject of a lengthy grand jury investigation, allegedly preyed on vulnerable boys he had met through Second Mile, a charity he founded. The accusations rocked Penn State to its core, resulting in a national scandal that brought to light how university officials chose to look the other way when previously informed of Sandusky's inappropriate behavior. In the end, the choice to do nothing led to the ouster of Paterno (who died shortly after being fired), the university's president and a number of other school authorities. This e-book, a selection of articles from The New York Times, chronicles the scandal and subsequent trial of Sandusky, who in June 2012 was found guilty of sexually abusing 10 boys; in October 2012 he was sentenced to 30 to 60 years in prison.
